Kidney March is the only event of its kind in the world

As the only event of its kind in the world, Kidney March is on the bucket list of anyone affected by kidney disease to undertake at least once, or for many participants, every year. Our goal for Kidney March 2018 is to bring teams from every province in the country with one common objective: bringing the kidney community together in a united desire to improve the care and prognosis for those with kidney disease.

Your chance to take part in a national event

ALBERTA BOUND

One weekend each year in early September, courageous adventurers travel from across Canada to the biggest kidney event in the country. Kidney March is not your typical stroll in the park, it is a 3-day, 100 kilometre pilgrimage taking participants from Kananaskis Country to Calgary Olympic Park in one of the biggest challenges of their lives.

Kidney Marchers are drawn to Calgary with a common goal of doing the most they can possibly do for kidney disease and organ donation. Most people who accept the challenge have been personally affected by kidney disease. People like Susan, who received a kidney transplant in 2010, and her daughter, Alexandra, who received a transplant in 2017. The mother-daughter duo traveled from Ontario with a team of friends and family to demonstrate their love and support for Alex, diagnosed with kidney disease at the age of 27.

Co-Sponsoring Can Make An Even Bigger Impact

Joanne Drodge and Randy Haatvedt personify what Kidney March is all about. Both Kidney March veterans, Joanne and Randy could write the book about going the extra kilometre. A retired IT Consultant, Randy donated his kidney to his friend Pat in 2012. A long-time client at Pat's shoe shine business in downtown Calgary, Randy watched his friend of 20 years continuing to work hard every day, even though it was clear to him Pat's health was getting progressively worse. Randy did a little internet research and without a word to Pat, called Pat's doctor to see how he could help. Randy had hoped to do the transplant work-up anonymously so as not to get Pat's hopes up if he wasn't a match – but protocol would not allow that. Once he told Pat, the two friends started knocking over the obstacles one at a time. "It was an amazing experience," Randy says, "From the time I made that first call, I had a good feeling – we both did. In fact, if I had another kidney to give, I'd do it all again."

Joanne Drodge first learned about kidney disease was when her nephew, Bryan, was born with it. Now 21, Bryan has had two transplants, and is on the waiting list for a third in Halifax. Though Joanne is not a match for her nephew, she's looking into the paired donor exchange program, and has begun kidney donor testing so that even if she cannot donate to her nephew, she can donate to someone else in need. "Awareness raised through Kidney March is critical when it comes to kidney disease and organ donation-- people need to understand, it could easily be them," she says.

It was Randy's idea to sponsor half a lunch pit stop with a donation of $2,500, and Joanne, an independent insurance and financial advisor with the Pelican Group, was quick to respond. Both Randy and Joanne believe in giving back to the community. "If you are in any way philanthropic or community minded, you already understand that donating in the community has spin off benefits for your business and helps you get your name out publicly and aligned with a meaningful cause. Kidney March is an obvious choice for anyone who knows about kidney disease or has a personal connection," Joanne says.

Pit Stops provide Kidney Marchers with much needed refuge throughout their journey. All along the Kidney March route are five full-service pit stops, complete with water, electrolyte drinks, snacks, and portable toilets, as well as five quick-pits, where Marchers can replenish their water and grab a much needed snack. The third pit stop each day is the lunch stop, where hearty nutritious re-fuel is served to shore up the Marchers for the rest of the day's journey.

Quick Pit
Stops
$1,500 each
or 3 for $3,000

Pit Stops provide sponsors with a unique way to engage their staff in a meaningful volunteer experience that makes a real difference to the amazing Marchers and the people who come to cheer them on. Of course sponsors can choose whether they want their employees to be Pit Stop leaders or if they want a Kidney March Crew to run it for them. One thing is for sure - anyone who has the opportunity to lead a Pit Stop will be incredibly inspired by the heroes they meet and the stories they hear. They may just be forever changed...

Make Your Own Unique Impression by supporting one of our EXCLUSIVE One-only Partnership Opportunities

If you have other ideas, we will work with you to design a sponsorship opportunity that aligns with your corporate mission.

Closing Ceremonies $15,000

A Celebration Like No Other

At the end of the journey, participants are treated to an amazing and inspirational closing ceremony to commemorate their accomplishment. It is truly a celebration like no other. The site of the first Canadian Winter Olympics provides the perfect backdrop to celebrate the achievements of the March and the impact it has in the battle against kidney disease.

Closing Ceremonies is the most prestigious partnership opportunity available – providing our lead partner with the most media buzz, recognition and public profile

Crew $10,000

The 120 energetic people who form the Kidney March Crew provide the supportive backbone that keeps the Kidney Marchers going every day. From cheering Marchers to bringing critical supplies to a Marcher in trouble, Kidney March would simply not be possible without an amazing and dedicated volunteer Crew. Providing support for the Kidney March Crew would provide the right partner with a unique opportunity to brand the Crew's clothing and gear to make them more visible and to provide Marchers with additional tools and resources. The Crew sponsor has the unique opportunity to put their name and logo on Crew shirts specifically for the Closing Ceremonies.

Tent City $7,500

Referred to by some as the magical tent city, the Kidney March camp is like no other. Imagine a place where people enjoy a breathtaking outdoor experience with hundreds of newly found friends. Each person shares a 2 person tent that is provided for them. A sea of pristine, cozy sleeping pods, all lined up in a grid, surrounded by an infrastructure on wheels that takes care of all the Marchers' needs.

THE KIDNEY FOUNDATION OF CANADA

Phone Charging Stations $7,500

Most Marchers bring along cell phones or cameras to take photos and share their experiences with family and friends in real time. One of the biggest challenges Marchers face is ensuring they have enough battery life to get that inspiring shot when the opportunity arises or to upload that perfect photo to share with a family member or on social media. A portable charging station along the route or in camp each day would be a welcome addition to the infrastructure already in place.

Opening Ceremonies $7,500

The Opening Ceremonies are critical to getting the Marchers off on the right foot!

This highly charged kick-off event energizes, inspires and reminds Marchers exactly why they have taken on the amazing Kidney March challenge.

Opening Ceremonies partnership includes a mention and interview with Calgary's leading radio station, Country 105 on Day Zero, the day of Kidney March registration and kick off, Sept. 9th.

Dining Hall $5,000

Mobile kitchens serve hot, nutritious dinners and breakfasts for Marchers and Crew.

The Dining Hall is also the site of evening entertainment and laughter at the end of an exhaustingly rewarding day. The Dining Hall provides an exceptional partnership opportunity for the right partner who wants to support and sustain our Kidney March heroes in one of the most important ways possible.

Patient Program $5,000

In dialysis units across Southern Alberta, dialysis patients are participating in their own Kidney March. Completing 100 kilometres of activity, using specialized bikes while on dialysis. Being active while dialyzing is shown to clear more toxins from the blood, patients who take on this challenge are energized physically and emotionally. These individuals are not walking in Kidney March but they are with us every step of the way.

Training Program $5,000

Couch potatoes and experienced runners alike all benefit from the training and guidance that the Kidney March team offers. Our comprehensive training program, which includes in-person and on-line components, such as 10-12 practice walks around Calgary in the months leading up to the March gradually and painlessly gets participants ready to handle the epic journey ahead. People are often surprised to find out that they are capable of doing this if they prepare. Best of all, Marchers train alongside other Marchers and inspire each other to keep going.

THE KIDNEY FOUNDATION OF CANADA

Porta-Potties $5,000

Marchers have described the red porta-potties down the road as a 'beacon on the horizon.' At Kidney March, porta-potties are coveted destination points because Marchers are all too aware that urine can only be produced by someone with functioning kidneys. Pee is something to be especially celebrated and revered. At Kidney March, the oft-disrespected porta-potty really is king. We expect this unique sponsorship opportunity to go fast!

Showers $5,000

Our camp showers provide all Marchers with much needed relief at the end of a long day. Our shower sponsor has the opportunity to change an average, bare bones shower into the kind of spa-like, steamy hot refresh the Marchers deserve. The shower and bathroom facilities are rented at the camp sites and large amounts of water is trucked in.

Transportation $5,000

Though feet are the primary mode of transportation at Kidney March, wheels, and lots of them, play a critical role in the success of Kidney March too. Vehicles are needed to set up and tear down Tent City, and to transport food and medical supplies to campers. The crew depends on vehicles to support March participants and provide aid to people needing medical attention. Buses transfer Marchers on the morning of day 1 and day 2 to start their journey.

Kidney March Alumni Reunion $5,000

The Annual Kidney March Alumni Reunion unites all Marchers and Crew from the previous Marchers to share Kidney March stories, celebrate accomplishments and unveil the new Kidney March video. It's a time for kidney patients who participated in the Kidney March Patient Program to stand shoulder to shoulder with the Marchers who walked 100km. It's an emotional reunion you won't want to miss.

General Store $3,000

The mobile general store stocks key supplies for Marchers at super low prices. From snacks to sunscreen, the store is a critical resource for Marchers and Crew as they wander blissfully (and also blisterfully) in the great expanse of the Kananaskis countryside.

Massage Tent $3,000

The Kidney March massage tent at camp is one of the most popular and coveted services offered to Marchers throughout their journey. Line ups for a massage are understandably long and only a small number of Marchers have the stamina to wait in line until it is their turn. Your support for our massage station would help us bring in additional massage therapists and equipment, and provide a comfortable seating area for those waiting.

“You are not only making an impact for all of those people currently living with kidney disease, you are affecting the lives of generations to come.”

Calgary Mayor, Naheed Nenshi

Closing ceremonies

Dialysis patient Jim Hutton biked the equivalent of 100 km in the dialysis unit in the Kidney March Patient Program and came to cheer Marchers over the finish line.

Southern Alberta Branch Kidney March Team

Six timer Kidney Marcher, Michelle MacKinnon, lost her 18 yr old son to kidney disease the day he was scheduled to receive her life saving kidney.

“The day David died, I said to the doctor, I am donating my kidney anyway. There’s someone who needs it as much as he did.” In the spring of 2015 Michelle got that chance and saved the life of a two year old boy after seeing his mom’s appeal on social media.

“The March isn’t going to bring David back. But I do it with my son Andrew to honour David, and every other kidney patient in Canada.”

More than ever, consumers are searching for meaning. Not only in the brands that they align with, but in the conduct of their lives. We offer people a chance to connect with the deepest part of themselves, and your company and employees the chance to connect with those people.

Kidney March is no walk in the park. It's a pilgrimage that lasts three days, and takes participants 100 kilometres on a journey from K-Country all the way to Calgary. For some people, it's the most challenging thing they've ever done. They develop an impassioned loyalty to the brand that supports them in achieving it.

Let's talk about the possibility of Kidney March putting your company in an embrace with consumers unlike anything you've ever been involved in before.
